

Dr. Rashid Javanshir is currently a visiting lecturer at Imperial College Business School in London. Previously, he worked at BP for over 20 years in senior management roles including Senior VP for Strategy & Integration in Global Upstream, London (2012 – 2015). He served as Regional President for Azerbaijan - Georgia – Turkey, where he was leading one of the largest business units in BP with up to million barrels per day of oil equivalent production and exports.

Dr. Javanshir is a distinguished scientist with more than 150 books and papers published internationally. He is a member of Azerbaijan National Academy of Sciences, served as Regional Editor of 'Energy Sources' (USA), member of Editorial boards of the 'Journal of Petroleum Science and Engineering' (Elsevier), and 'Azerbaijan Geologist'. He was Scientific Director of The Institute of Deep Oil and Gas in Azerbaijan's National Academy of Sciences (1988 – 1995). He holds PhD in Geophysics from Moscow Gubkin University and Doctoral Degree in Geology and Mineralogy from the Institute of Geology in Baku. He is Alumni of Harvard Business School. He was awarded Order of Glory by President of Azerbaijan for his major contributions to the oil industry.